A task force made up of Pa-hokee Police, Palm Beach County School Board Police and Palm Beach County Sheriff's Deputies recovered over $20,000 taken in recent bur-plaries at Pahokee Elementary School. Using search warrants, the task force searched several homes in Pahokee and recov-ered the goods. The task force was formed recently because of the increase in residential and commercial burglaries in the Pahokee area.

The investigation led to the arrests of two suspects, William Richardson, 27, and another inidentified male, both of Pahokee. Warrants were is-sued for two additional sus-

Gout: How food can help sufferers

The word "gout" might con-jure up the image of a fat king chomping on a turkey drum-stick while balancing his ban-daged foot on a pillow, but the reality is that anyone can be stricken with painful gout.

Gout is a form of arthritis. According to "The Complete

More on Pahokee

"I'm speaking in regard to the recent Speak Out in The Sun about Pahokee's new leadership moving ahead. You know, Pahokee is moving ahead, but some of the things they (Larry Wright) mentioned in letter last week that the new leadership was doing was already in progress and was started when the new administration came

Just for instance, the high school. That was already in progress. And the painting was already in progress.

City of Belle Glade is charging on water bills. I feel we are being persecuted for paying our water bills on time. For example, my due, date to pay my water bill is the 10th of the month. I paid my water bill on the 10th and I was still charged $5 for a late fee. I was told by a clerk this was because I did not pay the bill before the 10th of the month. So, it seems we are being charged extra for paying our bills on time.

Any other agency allows some type of grace period. This is not being done by the City of Belle Glade so our citizens are getting punished with an extra $5 bill if they pay on the day the bill is due.

I've heard this complaint from others in the community and I feel we are being ripped off. The water bills are high enough without being persecuted for naving your

In general, our customers are billed on a monthly cycle so that the bill arrives at about the same time every month. The date may vary by a couple of days in any given month if the normal billing date falls on a weekend or a holiday.

Next governor must engage early on environmental matters.

By Bob Martinez
Beginning in the 1980s, environmental issues began to receive greater prominence in the public consciousness. The obvious reason stems from the fact that the citizens of Florida are themselves placing greater emphasis on this area. The increased grassroots concern has brought about bi-partisan efforts to achieve a better balance between environmental concerns, economic development and property rights.

During this year's legislative session some intense debates took place, Tort reform, tax took place, Tort reform, tax rebates, pro-life license plates, and vote fraud reform were among those. Also at the top were some environmental con-cerns, including two bills that were directly linked to the were directly lanked to the effort to restore the Ever-glades, as well as competing efforts to extend the life of the Preservation 2000 land buying plan. To the joy of some and consternation of others, none of these became law. On the plus side, a permanent source of funding for beach renourish ment projects was provided for the first time.

·How should the 1998 legisla-How should the 1998 legisla-ture be graded on environmen-tal issues affecting the state? It would be fair to say that they earned a grade of "C plus". How can that be, one might ask, if there were major goals left unfulfilled? There are those who would give the legislature an "F."

The best way to answer that would be to describe the grading system as being "on the curve." Therefore, the governor and executive branch earned a "C plus" as well. The only way that the legislature gets a failing grade would be if the executive branch had earned an "A." That is clearly not the and executive branch earned a ing grade would be if the executive branch had earned an "A." That is clearly not the case this year. It takes a partnership to accomplish positive things in government and in 1998 the two branches were not able to achieve a balance in the areas of the environment and private property rights. Should one branch bear more of the blame? Not this year. The governor did share in the glory by signing the beach renourishment legislation. The coverage and the editorials on House bills 4071 and 4141, which affected the Everglades, were extensive at the end of the session and thereafter. The editorials were universal in their stance, passionately urging the governor to veto those bills. Not a single editorial supporting either of these bills comes to mind. Does that mean that I would have signed them? I would have signed one and vetoed the oth-er. The concepts of both were reasonable, but in the end one vent too far bills were admittedly These bils were admittedly not perfect, but among their original goals were two basic principles. First, there must be a mechanism where accountability for state-purchased lands is introduced and second, the traditional states are also as a second to the state of the states are as a second to the traditional protection that Florida landowners are afforded under state law should not be easily diluted without an unassailable higher interest.

In the beginning, HB 4141 sought more accountability, through legislative oversight, to the Everglades restoration effort. In the end, amendments hrought the legislative. brought the legislature too to preserve a proper separation of powers it required a veto.

HB 4071 would have required that state law be followed in land condemnation instead of a federal process that is potentially less expen-sive to the state and more expensive to the landowners. This would not appear to con-stitute the unassailable higher interest required to supersede our state's long-cherished laws involving private property. There is no valid reason to argue that enactment of this bill would have shut down Everglades restoration. I would have signed this bill. One would think that both bills passed by narrow margins along party lines. In reality the property rights bill passed 111-tin the House and 34-3 in the Senate, while the accountabiliy bill passed the House by a 100-13 count and 37-1 in the Senate. That is a story in and of itself and should be ample proof of good intentions on a bi-partisan basis.

With that in mind, it is reasonable to assume that the next legislature will again look at accountability as well as the at accountability as well as the rights of property owners and balance those interests with our mutual desire to restore the Everglades. Hopefully the debate can be centered on clearly focused issues and if there are concerns, then they must be forwarded during the proper time for discussion, such as committee hearings and floor discussion. It is not and thor discussion. It is not clear when the governor became opposed to the Ever-glades measures, but this issue is important enough to require strong leadership before the laws are passed. The legisla-ture must receive executive hearth input and needs to branch input and needs to know just what the governor is repared to sign.

There is another key environmental issue that will require strong executive leadership. While the legislature fully funded Preservation 2000 in the 1999 budget, it was not extended beyond its scheduled date for termination in 2000. That was a disappointment, but not anywhere near a fatablow to the program. There were somewhat conflicting verwere somewhat conflicting ver sions of the extension in both chambers of the legislature, but the two were not recon-ciled. The next governor must ciled. The next governor must be willing to be a strong leader to ensure that this legislation passes. This is a popular pro-gram and the people of Florida expect it to continue. With leadership from the top, I am confident that this disappoint-confident that this disappoint-ment will turn into sound pubic policy next year. If this was the out year and P2000 had been allowed to expire, then the legislature would have clearly earned an 'F'. That is not the case and its continuing its mission unin-terrupted. That is the good news. I predict that an extennews. I predict that an extennews, I predict that an exten-sion will pass next year, which will continue the program of preserving sensitive lands, provide for greater account-ability once the lands are pur-chased, and the rights of prop-erty owners clearly acknowledged.

Full funding of the Surface Full funding of the Surface Water Improvement and Management (SWIM) program should also be a high priority for next year, as should coptinuing to encourage more innercity investment through the description of former contamdevelopment of former contam-inated sites known as Brown-fields. We must also begin to look seriously into the growing problem of storm water runoff and the pollution that it spreads. The problem is real and will need broad, bi-parti-san solutions. The legislature should put it on their agenda san solutions. The legislature san solutions. The legislature should put it on their agenda for next-year. Working together on these and other important issues can earn both the legislature and the new governor a grade A rating from the people of Florida. Bob Martinez was governor of Florida from 1987-91, Prior to that he was mayor of Tampa and served on the Southwest Florida Water Management—District. He is Chairman of Bob Martinez & Co. of Tampa, an international consulting firm and also serves as Chairman of the Theodore Rooscelt Society, a Talitahassee-based think tank that promotes public policy which balances the need for environmental protection with economic development and private property rights.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Ricky Rudd vs. Geoff Bodine

It's been a difficult season for both of these guys, but Bodine cost them a chance at winning Sears Point when his Ford nalled Rudd's at the apex of a turn. Bodine owned up to the crash being his fault, but it was a particularly gratly mistake since neither driver has run up front often this year.

NASCAR This Week's reporter Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "fludd at least kept his sense of humor. He said he was glad he was glad he was there because, if Bodine had gone into that turn so hard with nothing to stop him, he would have jumped the track and landed in the luxury suites."

Dick Berg, General Manager of the Florida ThunderCats, today announced three new employannounced three new employ-ees for the upstart Indoor Soccer Franchise. They are Burt Glick, Sales Manager; Steve Kinsey, Community Relations Manager; and Kevin Thornburg, Media Relations Director. He said, "We are pleased to welcome Burt, Steve and Kevin to the ThunderCats family. They seek her companand Kevin to the ThunderCats family. They each are competent and bright and bring a high level of energy find dedication. They are the type of people who, I hope, will come to typify the ThunderCats Organization." Berg also expressed his appreciation and thanks for the many highly qualified applicants who have shown interest in the first year organization.

Sales Manager - Burt C. Glick came to the Florida ThunderCats by way of the Miami Fusion (Major League Soccer) and the Florida Beachdogs (Continental Basketball Association). Burt has an extensive background in the field of sales and will serve as the Sales Manager for the ThunderCAts. Burt's commitment and background is mitment and background is that of a well-rounded, sports minded sales professional. His vision for the ThunderCats centers on the idea of selling a thriling, fast paced, entertain-ment oriented game. Burt is confident that indoor soccer has the potential to, not only captivate the attention of all sports fans, but also that of the soccer "purist", as well as all others eager for a night of affordable fun and entertain-ment at the New Broward

Community Relations Manager - Steve Kinsey embodies all the qualities of a true English soccer star. Steve played for Manchester City for the better part6 of nine years. He played for Manchester City beat with a part of back when it was still a part of the elite Premier Division; however, in 1988, Joe Robbie (Miami's won) purchased Steve's contract rights and introduced him to the Indoor Game. Steve, in his first year Game. Steve; in his first year with the Minnesota Strikers and the Major Indoor Soccer League (MISL), was voted Rookie of the Year and to the All Star Team. During the summer of 1990, he played for the Fort Lauderdale Strikers (outdoor team) and helped lead them to a Championship. From 1990 until 1996, Steve continued to play indoor soccer and

PROFILE

Joe Gibbs

By Monte Dutton NASCAR This Week

Already a member of the National Football League's Hall of Fame, Joe Gibbs has followed his coaching. another of his lifelong loves, motorsports.

Gibbs-coached teams played in four Super Bowls and won three of them. Amazingly, he won with three different quarterbacks: Joe Theismann, Doug Williams and Mark Rypien.

While still coaching the Redskins, Gibbs started up his own race teams. In only his second season in NASCAR Winston Cup, Dale Jarrett gave Gibbs his first victory at the Daytona 500. Bobby Labonte has already won two races this season in Gibbs' green and black Pontiac Grand Prix.

Gibbs also fields NHRA Top Fuel and Funny Car eams, as well as a Busch Grand National Pontiac for rising star Tony Stewart, who will probably join Labonte in Winston Cup next year.
